TRAIL

THE MAPLE TRAIL

Oh stately trees, what secrets dear,
Are hidden in thy minds,
What knowledge hast thou captured here
That man hath left behind?

Oh shaded trail, thy path shall lead
To greater knowledge still,
Tho' stumbling feet shall tear and bleed
In climbing up life's hill.

Oh soothing shadows: peace sublime;
Thy cherished walks so dear
Have aided men since distant time
Who've paused to linger here.

"To greater heights unknown" you sing:
You fling it to the breeze,
Its airy voice your message brings,
--A challenge from the trees.

Lead on kind trail: with no regret,
We'll follow over thee;
We'll understand your lesson yet,
And greater men we'll be.

--David B. Settles

ADMINISTRATION

PRESIDENT WARREN FRANCIS JONES

We feel deeply indebted to our president, who has fostered us--the class of 1942-1943- with paternal love and understanding. Our happiness at work and play has been encouraged. In acknowledging our gratitude for his kindness, sincerity and as an expression of our devotion to this Christian gentleman, worthy of our unlimited praise.....we dedicate this volume of "The Maple Trail".

For many years outgoing college classeshave published yearbooks, or annuals as they are more commonly called. These publications serve as a means of reflecting the activities of college life, particularly outside the classroom, and thus serve as an avenue of "living over" some of the happy events of college days. The publication of the yearbook in itself is valuable to the participants, but other values are obtained that are even greater for long after the actual achievement of production has been forgotten friendships are renewed, experiences are relived and incidents are reflected, upon that refresh the individuals who examine the pages of the yearbooks of their alma maters.

With these values in mind the administration of Campbellsville College endorsed and promoted the publication of the first yearbook in 1926-27 two years after the establishment of the college department on the campus. A committee chose to call the first annual "The Garnet and Gray" to coincide with the school colors; but in 1929 by vote of the student body upon names submitted by many students the name was changed to "The Maple Trail." This name seemed fitting because of the rows of maple trees that form the lane leading to the main academic building on the campus. After four annuals had been published the activity was discontinued until 1941-42 when it was revived.

It is the hope of the writer that this book, its successor and its forerunners may become more and more meaningful to their readers as the experiences of life bring about greater appreciation of those activities and individuals which are reflected through their pages.

CLASS WILL

CLASS WILL

Feeling worn, yet sound, in body and mind, we, the Class of 143 do hereby bestow, bequeath, and,.. throw away this day of May, 1943, the following valuables, dear to our hearts, to the persons herein mentioned in this our Last Will and Testament. After deep study, shedding of blood, and delicate selection of talents and heirs, we do hereby deem it unjust, illegal, and unnecessary, Hdwever, insomuch as it is traditional, we must do it.

Regretfully we pass the Sophomore privileges (?) to the unfortunate Freshman and wish them the best of everything during the ensuing year at our Alma Mater. We have never found out just what these privileges are, however, we feel sure that they are something you just can't put your finger on. Here's hoping you'll be able to name them when you graduate.

ALLEN wills her boy friends she found in the teaching profession to her successor, Margie Best—we were wondering why Margie wanted to teach in the mountains.

BARTON wills her red glass beads to Nall for Angeline to make a vampire out of her.

BELL wills her way with the men to Marion Willis.

BERRY wills her art notebook to Hicks so she can sleep through it when she takes it over again next year.

BLAKEMAN wills her sunny disposition to Mr. Lyon.

CHRISMAN wills her drawl to Carter—we hope it'll slow her down.

COOPER wills his job of sweeping the dining hall to Lovan, since he'll have to keep busy somehow with no Libbie.

COTTRELL wills his curly hair to Mr. Higdon so he won't have to use wavers.

COWHERD wills her inevitable excuses to Oldham, who always gets caught.

COX wills her clothes to Crandell.

DAVIS wills her cottage to the Eaton's--she's going to get a Castle.

DEW wills her gigantic appetite to Nicely.

DURHAM wills her sweaters to Denny.

EATON wills his singing talent to Sisney.

GARNER wills his height to Leigh.

GRAHAM wills her leisure time to Johney Noel--poor girl ought to have some fun next year.

HENDERSON wills his crown and tux to Mr. Mardis, who'll probably have to be May King next year.

JEFFRIES wills her trying, troublesome tricks and perky, persistent pranks to next year's cuties.

JOHNSON wills her unusual name to Malzora Bernard--there's too many by that name anyway.

KRAHWINKEL wills her satin wedding dress to Edwards.

LEE wills her B in geography to the college to show it can be done.

LOBB wills her car to whoever wants an excuse for being late next year.

LOVAN wills his heart to his L. C. (little cousin).

MOBLEY doesn't will her appetite to anyone-rationing is on.

NICHOLS wills her picture in the annual to Mr. Mardis to remind him of her sweet face.

PINKSTON wills her beauty to Eunice Jeane Allen.

RHODUS wills his police cap and stick to the new Dean of Girls next year-she'll surely need 'em.

ROMINES wills her sunny disposition to Howard-she says she's "so mean". (who ain't?)

RIGHTMYER wills his "line" to future fishermen of Campbellsville.

SANDERS wills her prowess in campusology to Helen and Swannee.

SETTLES wills anything he can't do to Mr. Felts.

SHELY wills his love for Georgetown to Margie so she'll come there too.

SHUFFETT wills her blonde hair to Anderson.

STARK wills her Rook cards to her sisters to keep them from being bored next year.

TRIVETT wills her room at Mrs. Cole's to future honeymooners.

WADE wills her office knowledge to her roommate.

WHITLOW wishes someone would will her a cookbook.

WOODRING wills her catalogs to the library so every one will have access to them.

WILSON wills her popularity to Josephine Brown.

WRIGHT wills her batting average to Russell Martin, who never could hit the ball anyway.

YOUNG wills her talkativeness to Frances Nicely so she will talk a little more.
